Uranium Energy Uses Undisclosed Paid Stock Promoters

According to the complaint, Uranium Energy officials failed to disclose that its stock achieved an unsustainable valuation through the use of paid stock promoters. On June 18, 2015, an article published by TheStreetSweeper.org reported that Uranium Energy was using undisclosed paid stock promoters to increase the value of Uranium Energy shares. The article stated, in part: "UEC has been running up on promotions coming from Twitter, Seeking Alpha authors and reportedly hype paid by the company itself." Additionally, a report by hotstocked.com stated that Uranium Energy has caused to be published at least eight separate stock promotions, for which the company, or third parties controlled by the company, paid over $200,000.

On June 19, 2015, Uranium Energy issued a press release stating that the article published by TheStreetSweeper.org had no merit, but failed to address the allegations related to the undisclosed paid stock promotions. As a result, shares of Uranium Energy dropped $0.62, or over 25.6%, to close at $1.80 on June 19, 2015. Over two trading days, shares fell $0.80, or over 30.7%.
