SAN FRANCISCO, CA--(Marketwired - August 09, 2016) - Richard Karn, managing editor of The Emerging Trends Report, makes the argument for investment in rare earth and specialty metals, and explains why one company is a particularly smart bet for investors.

Included in this article are: Alkane Resources Ltd. (ASX: ALK) (OTCQX: ANLKY)

The short list of potential non-Sino REE producers has thinned dramatically. On that list is Alkane Resources Ltd.'s (ASX: ALK) (OTCQX: ANLKY) Dubbo Zirconia Project (DZP), which has both zirconosilicates hosting zirconium, hafnium, yttrium and heavy REE as well as natroniobite and calcian bastnsite hosting niobium, tantalum and light REE respectively in rural New South Wales, Australia.

Alkane's polymetallic DZP has all of the infrastructure, as well as a revenue stream spread between both light REE (22% neodymium & praseodymium) and heavy REE (15% terbium, dysprosium & yttrium), which are quite profitable at current REE prices, and in-demand specialty metals, zirconium (31%), ferroniobium (16%), and hafnium (9%), which should render market shocks and price manipulation less of an existential threat.

Continue reading this article: China's Stranglehold on REEs Offers Opportunities

About Streetwise Reports - The Gold Report

The Gold Report shares investment ideas for the precious, base and critical metals sector. The information provided above is for informational purposes only and is not a recommendation to buy or sell any security.

DISCLOSURE:

The following companies mentioned in the article are sponsors of Streetwise Reports: Alkane Resources Ltd. The companies mentioned in this article were not involved in any aspect of the interview preparation or post-interview editing. Streetwise Reports does not accept stock in exchange for its services. The information provided above is for informational purposes only and is not a recommendation to buy or sell any security.

The full disclosure is provided at the end of the published article: China's Stranglehold on REEs Offers Opportunities

Contact

Paul Guedes
Email contact