In addition to the closing of the private placement, Atco is excited with the developments that recently been announced in the Province of Newfoundland and Labrador. In April of 2022, the province lifted a ban on wind energy development allowing industrial customers to generate wind energy for their own consumption and for export. To date, the provincial government said that it has received 31 land nomination submissions for 73 possible wind energy projects in the province since it began accepting nominations for areas of interest for potential developments in July. Successful bidders from the awarding of Crown land for wind energy development will be issued a wind application recommendation letter from the Department of Industry, Energy and Technology. This letter will grant a bidder the exclusive right to pursue the development of their project through the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador Crown land application and approval process.

"The new fiscal regime strives to provide the maximum economic returns to the people of Newfoundland and Labrador while encouraging investment in this emerging industry. We are following a progressive approach to attract investment by allowing proponents to recoup their investment before the fiscal framework results in higher payments to the province."

-Honourable Andrew Parsons

Minister of Industry, Energy and Technology

Of the proposals that have been made public thus far, the most advanced is the USD $10 to 12 billion GH2 World Energy "Project Nujio'qonik" ('where the wind blows' in the Mi'kmaw language), located next to the community of Stephenville at Port au Port. The proposal consists of at least 3 gigawatt (GW) of wind energy production combined with plans for up to 250,000 metric tons per year of hydrogen production. The proposal is intended to meet the demands of a growing worldwide demand for green hydrogen.

The significance of green hydrogen was underpinned by the signing of the Canada-German Hydrogen Alliance in Stephenville, NL on August 23, 2022 by Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and German Chancellor Olaf Scholz. This agreement was further bolstered by the September 27, 2022 Declaration of Intent between the city of Hamburg Germany and the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador which aims to encourage the establishment of hydrogen supply chains that will result in exports of green hydrogen from the Province to Germany.

"We are extremely pleased with the closing of this financing" says Neil McCallum, Director of Atco Mining. "This private placement not only allowed us to bring in several very strategic investors that the Board felt will help drive substantial value for our shareholders but it also allows us to aggressively explore and develop our salt projects given the fact that our latest preliminary airborne results proved that we have a three large salt dome targets. Additionally, I believe the St. Georges Bay Basin will begin to attract much more attention in the coming months as the government of Newfoundland continues to position itself as a leader in the wind and hydrogen fuel production industry. With Atco being perfectly positioned to take advantage of this scenario as it develops potential storage solutions, I am looking forward to updating shareholders with our progress over the coming quarters."
