

AM Gold Inc. Announces Regulatory Approval for the Pinaya Option and JV Agreement Along With a Message from the CEO

11.09.2012 | Marketwire

VANCOUVER, 09/11/12 - AM Gold Inc. (TSX VENTURE: AMG) (FRANKFURT: AMX) ("AM Gold" or the "Company") is pleased to announce that it has received final approval from the TSX Venture Exchange for the Pinaya option and joint venture agreement (the "Option and JV Agreement") with Rokmaster Resources Corp. ("Rokmaster") (particulars of the Option and JV Agreement were announced on July 17, 2012). The Company also reports that it has received the first option payment from Rokmaster, being a cash payment of $400,000, along with a payment of US$67,800 representing a reimbursement of recent property claim fees paid by the Company for the Pinaya gold-copper project.

Message from the CEO

Since my appointment as CEO in September 2010, AM Gold has focused on advancing its Pinaya gold-copper project (Caylloma and Lampa Provinces, Peru) as well as seeking out other exploration opportunities of merit. One of the opportunities we advanced was the Company's Red Mountain property (Yukon Territory, Canada). We aggressively advanced the Red Mountain property through the drill bit taking the project from a grassroots prospect to a property of merit with an inferred resource estimate, 127 million tonnes grading 0.48 g/t gold, approximately 1.95 million ounces of contained gold using a cut-off grade of 0.3 g/t Au, in only two seasons (see the Company's news release of March 8, 2012 for full details of the inferred resource estimate). The foregoing inferred resource was achieved with a modest exploration budget of approximately $5,500,000 in the 2010/11 season.

At the Pinaya gold-copper project, we established community relations, surface rights, and obtained a drill permit in the second quarter of 2011. In addition, we advanced the measured and indicated resource estimate along with the inferred resource estimate (see the Company's news release of June 6, 2011 for full details on the measured and indicated resource estimate and the inferred resource estimate). We also focussed on geophysics and to that end we completed a ZTEM geophysics program on the entire 19,200 parcel as well as a geochemical program consisting of over 6,000 sample over key target areas on the southern portion of the land parcel (see the Company's news release of May 10, 2012).

The use of the ZTEM survey and the geochemical program delineated four primary target zones adjacent to the existing resource area, with a total of seven high priority targets identified on the southern one third of the Pinaya gold-copper project land concession. The current resource estimate for Pinaya remains open in three directions and at depth. The ZTEM geophysical data suggests high resistivity within an area both underlying the existing resource area and expansive laterally, spanning an area of interest 3km in length and up to 4km in width. This anomaly may be suggestive of a large porphyry body under cover. A geophysical anomaly of this scope has major implications for the potential size of the geological/geophysical target. This exploration target is now measured in multiples of cubic kilometers of rock.

Overall exploration expenditure at the Pinaya gold-copper project by AM Gold for the 2011 exploration program was a conservative $1.23 million.

As summarized above, AM Gold recently entered into the Option and JV Agreement with Rokmaster and the Company has now received final regulatory approval for the agreement. The decision to enter into the Option and JV Agreement was made after careful consideration in an effort to not only advance the Pinaya gold-copper project but also to free up capital to advance the Red Mountain property. Specifically, the optioning of the Pinaya gold-copper project streamlined our assets and allows us (1) to focus on our Red Mountain project (2) and to benefit in any future success of the Pinaya gold-copper project through the Company's retained interest.

From the outset, execution of the Company's business plan has been dependent on access to capital. Consistent with our business plan, to date, a significant amount of the technical analyses, evaluation, planning and preparatory work relating to optimization of our exploration projects has been implemented. The programs are ready for implementation of additional exploration and require additional capital in order to advance them. For the Pinaya gold-copper project we expect that the property will be advanced under the Option and JV Agreement. For the Red Mountain property we will seek capital to advance the exploration by all available means including monetizing the Company's two grass roots projects in Peru.

Current economic conditions have eroded investor confidence, creating liquidity concerns for many companies and creating an extremely challenging environment for capital raising activities. Traditional equity capital, particularly for small companies, has been severely curtailed. In such times, companies must evaluate their options and also their long-term goals. We have undertaken a re-evaluation of our properties and as summarized above our current focus is the Red Mountain property. In short, given the current economic conditions the Company simply did not have the capital to advance both the Pinaya gold-copper project and the Red Mountain property. After significant discussion it was decided that the optioning of the Pinaya gold-copper project would be less dilutive to the shareholders rather than raising money for both projects at a share price at or near a one year low.

We have also taken various actions to reduce the Company's burn rate. The most significant reduction in burn rate resulted from optioning the Pinaya gold-copper project as the costs related to the Company's activities in Peru are expected to be significantly reduced. Case in point, the Company's burn rate in Peru for the year ended December 31, 2011 was approximately $650,000 and the costs going forward are expected to be under $150,000 per year.

Management and the Board will continue to work to seek all reasonable means of advancing our projects and to create shareholder value. At AM Gold we look forward to the continuation of exploration and development of both current and new properties for the building of shareholder value. We would like to take this opportunity to thank the shareholders for their continued interest and support.
